

SIMPLE SOLUTION TO TRANSPORTATION & SUPPLY CHAIN COMPLEXITY

Mobile-first, map-driven interface allows instant visibility of critical data.

The Ronin Platform is a situational awareness platform with capabilities to integrate and aggregate everything you already have--data from the IoT, from vehicles and sensors, as well as legacy systems and your people--to allow for meaningful, real-time decision making.

CHALLENGE

Lack of operational visibility.

The transportation and logistics industries depend on consistent and reliable delivery of product to customers. Supply chain complexity and a myriad of disconnected systems to manage driver schedules, truck maintenance and compliance reporting make it a challenge to ensure OTIF.

Lack of operational visibility can inhibit a company's ability to drive operational efficiency and to tackle new business trends. Any breakdown can halt revenue and torpedo customer satisfaction, sometimes for the long-term.

SOLUTIONS

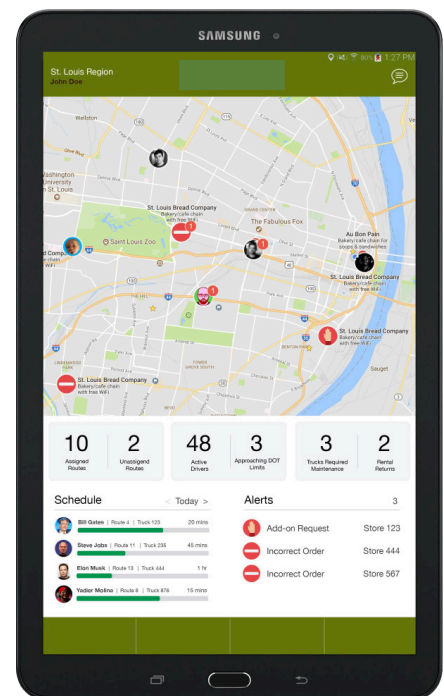

Real-time data visibility with a common operational picture.

Ronin answers these logistics questions by providing a real-time operational picture of the distribution network. Logistics managers and drivers, and even retail sites (customers) are linked together with their own views of the same information. Everyone can see the status of deliveries, get notifications of problems and act before delivery times are missed. Managers can confidently reroute drivers, make informed decisions and be certain they are in regulatory compliance.

The Ronin Platform is an intelligence layer that connects with existing management systems to pull relevant data. Ronin then employs existing workflows to deliver information to users in the context of their location and role.

Ronin's mobile-first, map-driven interface allows users to instantly visualize critical data, and act on it. Users can communicate with one another directly through the interface via chat, images, video or on-screen annotations. Everyone has visibility with a common operational picture.
